Colleges with NCAA Sanctioned Fencing Programs

Vital Statistics at a Glance

Introduction

Every parent with a fencer in high school wants to know if their kid has a shot at being an athlete recruit to an NCAA fencing program. We want to know if all those years of investment in training and competition will pay-off with a smoother passage to college.

The “wow” factor of a fencer ranked 3rd on the JNPL with a 4.5 GPA going to Harvard or Stanford leaves us all admiring and somewhat intimidated. What shot does our own kid have without these accomplishments?

There are more than 1,300 fencers spread through the 46 colleges with NCAA sanctioned fencing teams. The academic spectrum is quite wide, so are the rankings and rating classifications of fencers on these college fencing teams. There is a possible fit somewhere for the fencer determined to compete on an NCAA fencing team in college.

Not every fencer on a college team is a hard recruit who receives a “Likely letter” or a “National letter of interest”. Many more fencers are advised by college fencing coaches to apply “Early Decision”, or even through the normal application process, but who are assured of receiving strong verbal support from the coach with the admissions committee. Those who clear the academic hurdles will find a place on the fencing team. There are also large numbers of fencers who “walk on” to a fencing team, who gain admission to college through academic merit alone, and may not even have any fencing experience.

We do not indicate whether a fencer was a hard recruit to a fencing team as this data is not uniformly available for every college. The general profile of fencers on a team is indicative of the fencing JNPL ranking requirements for a hard recruit at each college. Some colleges require that their recruits are in the top 10 or 15 of their age group, and others are less restrictive. In any case, college fencing coaches generally hard recruit no more than 2 to 3 fencers per weapon per year, as they must adhere to their admissions office guidelines for recruitment.

Parents have over the years helped each other out by sharing their invaluable experiences with the process of fencing athlete recruitment with those who come after them. We subscribe to the view that the better informed we are, the better the decision we will make for our fencer’s choice of college.

We compiled this data to create a holistic picture of the NCAA fencing teams. Our goal is to provide you with:

- data driven insight into the composition of fencers at each of the 46 colleges
- a clearer picture of where your fencer could fit in academically and on a college fencing team

Vital Statistics at a Glance

- some foreseeability into where there will be openings for your fencer since college fencing coaches recruit primarily based on need for their team

As far as it has been available, we have included data on every college fencer's ranking on the Junior National Points List during his/her junior and senior years in high school as these are the most relevant years for fencing athlete recruitment. These rankings are your best benchmark for evaluating your fencer's possibilities.

This data should give you a pretty good idea of where these college fencers stood when they were conducting those crucial conversations with college fencing coaches about potential recruitment.

To be clear, college fencing coaches may only initiate recruitment conversations with fencer in the summer immediately after the fencer's junior year in high school. However, a fencer is free to initiate contact with a college fencing coach at any time before that by phone or email. A fencer can also meet the coach in person during a campus visit to discuss the fencing program at the college at any time before the end of junior year.

For many fencers, the conversation starts early in junior year when they initiate contact with coaches at the colleges they may be interested in.

The table below shows you the relevant dates for compiling rankings data:

Current College Status	Estimated Year - High School Senior	Estimated Year - High School Junior
Senior	2014/2015	2013/2014
Junior	2015/2016	2014/2015
Freshman	2017/2018	2016/2017

The years selected are our best estimate of when a current NCAA fencer was a senior or junior in high school. We extracted each fencer's ranking on the Junior National Points List after the Junior Olympics age out in Junior and Senior year, as well as a fencer's ranking in the Fall of Senior year, or the closest proximate date available in the archives. The ratings classifications reflect the highest rating attained by a fencer in his/her Senior year in high school.

All data in this handbook is compiled from publicly available sources including college fencing rosters for 2018/2019, Askfred, US Fencing, US News and World College Rankings, Forbes College Rankings, US Department of Education, college websites, and private college counselling websites.

All fencer data was manually and painstakingly compiled to maximize accuracy. We apologize in advance for inaccuracies, and we would very much appreciate getting a heads up on mistakes in the data so that we can fix it for the benefit of all. You can email us at editor@fencingparents.org

The data will be updated annually to reflect changes in the fencing rosters.

We will not publish data on fencers who are seniors in high school who have been recruited at this time. Changes can still happen before they matriculate as college freshmen, and we believe that it is not in that fencer's or anyone else's best interests to have their data released prematurely.

Wishing you all the best in your search for the right college for your fencer!

Notes to Academic Statistics

1. All data in Academic Statistics is compiled from publicly available sources including US News and World Report Rankings of Top Colleges, Forbes College Rankings, The Princeton Review, US Department of Education, college websites and private college counselling websites.
2. SAT score ranges represent scores between the 25th percentile and 75th percentile of an incoming freshman class
3. ACT score ranges represent scores between the 25th percentile and 75th percentile of an incoming freshman class
4. Where a college does not have a National Universities Ranking from US New and World Report, we have placed an NR under its National ranking. The college may have a Regional ranking from USNWR.
5. NLAC stands for National Liberal Arts Colleges Ranking. Where a number appears in the National Rankings slot with NLAC next to it, this indicates that the college has a national ranking amongst liberal arts colleges, and it is not a university.

Disclaimer

This handbook is created to provide fencers with general informational statistics on colleges with NCAA sanctioned fencing programs. The fencer profiles are designed as a general indicative guide to current high school fencers evaluating their academic and fencing achievements relative to the fencers on the current fencing rosters when they were in high school. We have done our best to reflect this information but we have made certain assumptions about high school graduation dates, which may or may not be correct as we cannot account for gap years, grades skipped and other information which is not publicly accessible.

All information in this handbook has been compiled from publicly available data sources.

The academic statistics, annual college costs and financial information is provided as a guide only, and we strongly recommend that you verify this information directly with any of the colleges you may be interested in. You should not make any decisions based on the information provided in this handbook, and you should conduct independent due diligence before you make important decisions about college selection and application.
